Members of both the neighborhood and business development departments have met with 385 businesses to date. Cole also noted the establishment of the Baltimore Business Recovery Fund with the support of the Board of Directors; these funds are for those businesses that are not eligible for Small Business Administration (SBA) or Maryland State Department of Housing and Neighborhood Development funds.

   iii. Cole reported that the BDC delegation received positive responses from the retail community during the International Council of Shopping Center’s (ICSC) RECon The Global Retail Real Estate Convention. The group conducted 20 meetings over two days. Cole expects to report success stories of future projects; despite the recent unrest, some developers expressed interest in starting their projects early. In an effort to continue to fill the food deserts, many of the appointments were with grocery retailers.

   iv. Cole shared that BDC will continue to be laser focused on business recovery efforts as part of the One Baltimore initiative. Cole reported that although donor participation (Baltimore Business Recovery Fund) is encouraging, the desired amount has not been met yet, continued participation will be vital to the success of the recovery efforts. Cole further noted that he continues to solicit additional support and awareness of the fund.

   v. BDC is deploying existing resources until such time funds are available; the offerings from the State of Maryland have been helpful as the SBA funds require the small businesses to assume additional debt.
